Dear Mr. Riley:

This letter, regarding the addition and renovation of our home, is long over due. We congratulate you and your team on a job well done and we have been enjoying our “new home” very much.

The addition of approximately 200 square feet to our kitchen and family room areas, adding a deck, redoing the front porch and flooring throughout the house, may not sound like a big job, however, to us it was. You and your team, from the project manager, the designer and workers on site, were always available to answer any questions or concerns we had and were always professional and courteous, not to mention keeping a very clean job site. This professionalism made a potentially disruptive period easier to handle and we actually had fun in our “make shift” kitchen and eating area in the dining room.

Although we anticipated some difficulties or “problems” along the way, as will occur on any type of construction or renovation project, those we did encounter, were resolved with a professional sensitivity. Those who were handling the issue(s) understood, this is our home, and they wanted to make things right, very rare in this society of ours today.

We have lost count of the many compliments we receive, particularly on the kitchen. Because you and your team “heard” our goals, we did indeed achieve an open, light and welcoming living environment, which we thoroughly enjoy.

We thank you and all of your team for helping to make our dream come true. We are thoroughly enjoying our new living space and entertaining friends and family.

We don't hesitate to tell our friends and visitors about your company and look forward to the time we can work together again.

Sincerely,

Jeff and Brooke Johnson
