To Prospective Clients of Andy Riley & Enterprise Contracting:

We own a 30+ year old home in Northern Virginia that has required updating inside and out and we routinely turn to Andy Riley and Enterprise Contracting to keep our home sound, safe and up to date.

Our relationship started in 1994 with remodeling the master bathroom and moved on to a new roof, replacement of all the original windows, a completely remodeled kitchen, new ceilings, an updated rec-room in the basement, a remodeled guest bath upstairs, and finally a new hardwood staircase and upstairs hallway. Along the way Enterprise has also painted our home's exterior, replaced the aluminum siding, front door and rain gutters, and installed an attic fan. Just recently they installed a replacement ceiling fan in the master bedroom. While the jobs vary in scope and complexity, on average Enterprise is helping us maintain our home about once every two years.

Clearly we are pleased with the quality of work and value provided by Andy and his team at Enterprise.

Our neighbors have seen the quality of both the work and the workers, and have been so impressed that four of them have hired Enterprise for major projects.

Perhaps just as important as the workmanship is the way Andy goes about designing and estimating the job. Andy will listen carefully to our ideas and then make suggestions based on his experience and knowledge of product quality and value. The recommendations Andy has made regarding lighting fixtures, cabinets, appliances, flooring choices, etc. have helped us achieve the look we want with good value.

We're not sure what project it will be next, but we are sure that Enterprise will be the first place we turn to help us figure it out.
